Eloquent Beveridge Gives the Philippines High Praise.

AROUSED HOAR'S RESENTMENT.

The Indiana Senator Charged That the Blood of Dead Soldiers Was on Opponents of Administration's Policy -Said We Would Keep the Islands.

Washington, Jan. 10 .- "That man ittle knows the common people of the republic, little understands the instincts of our race who thinks we will not hol t it (the Philippine archipelago) fast and hold it forever, administering just government by simplest methods."

This sentence was the keynote of the speech delivered in the senate by Mr. Beveridge, the junior senacor from Indiana. The announcement that he would deliver an address embodying | Declared Reports From Otis, Dewey and his observations in the Philippines attracted an unusually large nuraber of anditors to the galleries. On the floor of the senate every member in the city was in his seat and scores of representa tives came over from the house. The occasion was inspiring and Mr. Beveriage rose to it brilliantly. The speech created a profound impression.

When he declared, with deep solemnity, to these "whose voices in America have cheered those misguided natives on to shoot our soldiers down, that the ness or liver troubles should use Slusser's blood of those dead and wounded boys Vegetable Pills. 25c per bottle at drug-, of our is on their hands, and the flood of years can never wash that stain away," there was a deep, although suppressed, sensation among his anditors. the American republic. But if they did not command China, India, the Orient, the whole Pacific for purposes of offense, defense and trade, the Philippines are so valuable in themselves that we should held them. Thave cruised more than 2,000 miles through the archipelago, every moment a surprise at the loveimess and wealth. I have ridden hundreds of miles on the islands, every foot of the wry a revelation of vegetable and mineral riches. No land in America surpasses in fertility the plains and valleys of Luzon. Rice and coffee, sugar and cocoanuts, hemp and tobacco and many products of the temperate, as well as tropic zone, grow in various sections of the archipelago. Thave seen hundreds of bushels of Indian corn ying in a road fringed with banana trees. The forests of Negros, Mindanao, Mindora, Paluan and parts of Luzon are invaluable and intact. The wood of the Philippines can supply the furniture of the world for a century to come.

At Cobu, Rev. Father Julio Segrera told me that 40 miles of Cebu's mountain chain are practically mountains of coal. Pablo Majia, one of the most reliable men on the islands, onfirmed the statement. . one declare that the coal is only lightle; but ship captains, who have used ic, told me that it is better steamer fuel than the best coal of Japan. Thave a nzgget of pure gold picked up in its present Tuesday, the proceedings of yesterday form on the banks of a Phihppine creek. I and today will be duplicated on the have gold just washed out by crude proresses of careless natives from the sands of a Philippine stream. Both mineate great deosits at the source from which they come in one of the islands great deposits of coppor exist untouched.

And the wood hemp, copra and other prod ucts of the Philippines supply what we need and can not ourselves produce. And the markets they will themselves afford will be immense. Spain's export and import trade veloped will be $125,000,050 annually, for who believes that we can not do ten times as well as Spain. Consider their imperial dimensions Luzon is larger and richer than New York Pennsylvania, Illinois or Ohio. Mindanao is larger and richer nhan all New England. Ma-dila, as a port of call and oxchange, will, in the time of men now hving, far surpass Liverpool.

The Philippines bring us permanently face to face with the most sought for customers of the world. If we are willing to go to war rather than let England have a few feet of frozen Alaska, which affords no market and commands none, why should we not do rather than let England, Germany, Russia or Japan b we all the Philippines! And no man on the For can fail to see that this would be their into if we retired.

Mr. President, reluctantly and only from a sense of duty, am I forced to say that American opposition to the war has been the chief actor in prolonging it. Had Aguinaldo not understood that in America, even in the American congress, even here in the senate. he and his cause were supported, had he not known that it was proclaimed on the stump and in the press of a faction in the United States, that every shot his misgaided followers fired into the breasts of Anter can soldiers was like the volleys fired by Washington's men against the soldiers of King George, his in-urrection would have dissolved before it tutirely crystalized. I say to those whose reaction America have cheered those misrunded natives on to shoot our soldiers down. nat the blood of those dead and wounded boys of ours is on their bands, and this flood of all the years can never wash that stain

COMBATTED BY HOAR.

Other Sources Refuted Beveridge's Statements.

Washington, Jan. 10.-Senator Hoar replied to the speech of Mr. Beveridge. In the course of speech, he declared that practically every statement of fact in the speech was refuted by government reports received from Admiral Dewey, General Otis and from other official sources. Where did Spain get the right to sell her rights in the Philippines, Mr. Hoar asked. Where did the United States get the right to buy and sell people like sheeps He was certain that for all the wealth and commerce and glory which he had eloquently depicted, the senator from Indiana would not have a great injustice done.

Mr. Hoar declared the Filipinos had the Spamards hemmed in Manila and the latter were obliged to surrender. He thought it would be necessary to revise the constitution before those Filipinos could be bought and sold. He did not believe Mr. Beveridge would advise the American people to do this thing or to do anything so base as to strike down the mant Filipino republic.

The Massachuseits senator made frequent references to and quotations from the reports of General Otis and Admiral Dewey and other others in the Philippines. These showed, he asserted, that when Agumaldo arrived in Luzon from Hongkong the insurgents had an army of 30,000; that in the island of Luzon the Filipinos maintained courts, scools, mu. merpal governments and churches and that peace and order prevated pretty generally. Spamsh prisoners were kindly treated. "This," declared Mr. lioar, "is the condition of things which it is proposed to crush under our heels. he commented, "you cail glory. Mr. Hoar referred to Mr. Beveridge's wartare was due to utterances in this out that in December, 1898, the president had sent a proclamation to General Otis for publication with the statement that all r full consideration of the terms "sovereignty," "right of cession," etc., he was convinced they were calculated to cause an immediate outbreak of hostilities General Otis amended the proclamation by making the statement: "I am convinced that it is the intention of the government of the United States to seek the establishment or the most liberal government in the Phappines."

This appeared in the proclamation published to the Filipmos, but a copy of the actual proclamation of the president fell in the hands of the Filipino leaders and precipitated hostilities.

General Ous had promised, Mr. Woar said, a government to the Filipinos in which they would be able to exercise a full measure of their individual rights. "Did ne atter this promise to a people incapable of self-government—to half savages and half Spaniards?" demanded Mr. Hoar. He thought it bold to charge those men who had opposed this war from the beginding with the responsibility of all the blood being shed. He declared there had not been a time when, it General Otis had been able to give assurances of independence to the Filipinos, the war would not have terminated.

After reading some bassages from official reports, Mr. Hoar concluded. promising to discuss the question fully in the near future.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.-The claim of Admiral Dewey and the officers and men of his squadron for bounty was argued before the court of claims. William B. King and Herbert & Micou appeared for the defendants and Louis A Pradt, the assistant attorney general, for the government. The statute provides for the payment by the government of $100 head money for every man aboard vessels destroyed in battle where the force of the enemy is interior and $200 where the force of the enemy is superior. The contention of the claimants was that the force of the enemy was superior at Manila bay

Assistant General Pradt argued against the claim of $200 "head money." taking the ground that the statute ex-pressly stipulated "vessels" and con tained nothing as to "land batteries."

They are Both Expensive and Trailing -Skirt and Coat Costumes Walst Tasten' ings-Everything in Fur Even L ce is Em broidered With It.

It is rather unusual, at the beginning of winter, to see so many cloth gowns of such light colors and elaborate design. Besides the much-trimmed gown, there are any number of severely plain tailor costumes turned out, made after the designs of six or seven years ago, with plain skirts, short, tight-fitting walsts fastened with bone buttons and trimmed with machine stitching. Eminently practical and good style are these gowns, excepting that the skirts are still absurdly long and touch at the sides and in front. However, there are rumors, apparently well founded, that by next summer the useful gowns will have short skirts. In the meantime the women are doing more toward cleaning the streets than the Street Cleaning Department.

Many gowns are made up in the dcuble-faced cloths, without lining. These will be put away when the weather turns cold enough for fur coats, but will reappear in the spring, so that for women who have money rnough and lots of time to bestow on their cloths it is by no means a bad plan to have one of these commonsense frocks turned out.

Skirt and Coat Costume.

Apparently women have found that they cannot get along without at least one skirt and coat costume, and when It is possible they have two or three, and with them they wear waists of different materials, although of the same coloring perhaps. A fad is to have a waist made of miroir or tan velvet the shade of the gown, absolutely plain and worn with a lace tie. This is absurd, for velvet sleeves are the most; uncomfortable things in the world to wear under a cloth coat, and, as the coat sleeves must be small, if the coat is to look well, it makes a woman's urm feel as though all circulation had stopped. The coat and skirt gown to be worm in the morning should be plain; the skirt can be trimmed with folds of cloth or stitched bands, but it should be all in one color. The coat should be plain, without any revers excepting those of the cloth. With such a gown as this good furs show to advantage, but, of course, the whole costume must be well made. For the benefit of women who cannot afford to employ tailors it may be stated that it is possible in these days to have a cloth suit made by a seamstress.

The great difficulty of cloths is in the sponging and pressing, but this can be done before the cloth is sent home from the shop, and when the time comes for the seams to be pressed there are plenty of small tailor establishments where such work can be

Elaborate and Expensive.

The handsomer and more elaborate cloth gowns for afternoon are becoming more and more elaborate and expensive every day, for the work on them is of the finest kind. The cuz work and the different forms of applique are seen on every smart gown. until it is wonderful how much variety there can be obtained. No poor work is possible on these light cloths, and the lining that shows where the cloth is cut away must also be of expensive quality. The advantage of this style of trimming is that the flat effect that is so fashionable can best be carried out by it. A light gray gown will have a panel at the side of the skirt, or the front beradth lined with a much lighter gray or white than the front of the waist, which will be absolutely tight fitting, and covered with the cut work, leaving only a shaped yoke of the same color as the lining. Or there will be a band of the cut work half way up the skirt and extending completely around it, and the same design will be repeated around the waist covering the upper part of the sleeve. Still another plan is to have designs of cut work at the bottom of each breadth on the front of the waist and on the sleeves. This, however, is more on the applique order of embrofdery.

Applique Designs,

The applique designs are shown in great variety on the evening gowns which are made of lace or velvet. One particularly attractive evening gown that has the upper part of the skirt and the lower part of the waist made of turquoise blue velvet is covered with large figures of pale yellow velvet outlined with gold thread, and these figures are put on in the shape of leaves, On this same gown is a deep flounce of that this style of trimming is exceed- esting science.

Pretty Fastenings.

The fashion still continues on having the waist fastened a little to one side. This is more becoming to most figures than when the waist is fastened directly in front and is particularly pretty in the silk waists. A good example of this is the waist made with a small round yoke. The fronts of the waist are cut in curves around the yoke and then one side fastens over on the left shoulder and going across diagonally to the waist line. This is good in a black tucked taffeta waist or er way that the waists are fastened is captors, heavily armed. when there are revers that are shaped

Buttons, by the way, play a most important part in trimmings this year. They were used first on the fur coats and were brought out in many good patterns, the cut steel and the rhinestones being especially good, but now for use on the dress waists there are a great many that look like real jewels, so cleverly do they imitate the stone. And there are also pretty ones in gold, silver, steel and jet. All do not button into regular buttonbole, but more often are fastened with a small hoop, but breadth of good workmanship. They are used again on the jackets and often this is the only trimming on a handsome costume of cloth, velvet or satin. wounds.

Elephant Tending Babies.

Weakness appeals powerfully to the riendly protection of the strong, and even among brutes-at least, the nobler kinds—the appeal is not often in vain. In the curious relations between monster and midget we not unfrequently see the fable of the lion and the mouse repeated without words. There is nothing by any means un-common or incredible in the stories which have been reported about the children of a mahout being cared for by the mahout's elephant.

The whole family of the mahout become, as it were, parasites to the elephant, by whom they earn their living. trunk, while the mother went to fetch mother's back is turned.

The children thus brought up in the companionship of an elephant become familiar with him, and take all kinds of liberties with him, which the elephant seems to endure on the principle that it does not hurt him, while it amuses the child. You see a little naked black child, about two feet high, standing on the elephant's bare back, and taking it down to the water to bathe, shouting all the time in the most unbecoming terms of native abusive language.

On arriving at the water the elephant, ostensibly in obedience to the child's command, lies down and enjoys himself, just leaving a part of his body, like a small island, above water, on which the small child stands and yells, and yells all the more if he has several companions of his own age, also in charge of their elephants, all wallowing in the water around him. If the child slips off his island, the clephant's trunk promptly replaces him in safety. The little urchins, as they grow up, become first mates to mahouts, and eventually arrive at the dignity of being mahouts themselves. -Pittsburg Dispatch.

Citizens Seeking Electric Line Information.

The Delegation States That a Better on carrying the contest up to the legis-Route for the Road Than That Which Has Been Announced Would be by Way of Easton and Marshall-

A committee of members of the Dalton board of trade came to Massillon this afternoon for the purpose of ascertaining the general feeling of citizens of this place regarding the propose . Massillon, Doylestown and Burberton electric line, and to create, if possible, a sentiment favorable to the extension of the line to Dalton. Incidentally they sought information concerning the company represent d by Messrs. Townsend and Garver. The committee was composed of Dr. F. F. H. Pope, L B Snod grass, J. E. Goudy, William Locke. Harvey Santmyer, John Chafia, ex Mayor C. J. Harrold, S. B Martin and M. F. McDowell, all business men of Dalton.

Messrs. Garver and Townsend, it seems, announced that they would in ciude Dalton in the route for their line on condition that citizens of that place subscribe for $50,000 worth of stock in the company. Before entering into such an agreement, the citizens naturally de sire a clear understanding of just what they are doing. The consensus of opinion in Dalton is that the route suggested by Messrs, Townsend and Garver is not the best. From Doylestown, they think, the road should be constructed to Easton, thence to Marshallville, thence to Burton City, Dalton, East Greenville, West Brookfield and Massillon. This route, it is stated, is but a hall mile longer than that of Fulton, Lawrence, Greenville and Brookfield, and its towns lie but three miles apart. In addition, by adopting the Easton route, instead of running parallel with the various railways of this vicini ty, nearly all of them would be crossed at different points. The C., L & W would be met at Easton, the C., A & C at Marshallville, the W & L E., and P F W. & C., at Burton City and the W. & L. E. at Dalton. The committee stated that their village also has a proposition from a company interested in running a line from Wadsworth in their direction

There was a sign painter in the party and he painted advertisements on the rocks throughout the retreat, with other emblems like a skull and the word "vengeance," by means of which the Americans were isdiction he was treated splendicly, but able to follow.

"The Filipino treatment of the Spaniards," said Lieutenant Gilmore, "was brutal in the extreme. The insurgents had old grudges to wipe out against them. ## NUMEROUS GOWNS.

GETTING MORE AND MORE ELABOR ATE EVERY DAY.

they are Both Expensive and Trailing -Skirt and Coat Costumes Walst Lasten ings-Everything in Fur Even L ce is Em broidered With It.

It is rather unusual, at the beginning of winter, to see so many cioth gowns of such light colors and elaborate design. Besides the much-trimmed gown, there are any number of severely plain tailor costumes turned out, made after the designs of six or seven years ago, with plain skirts, short, tight-fitting walsts fastened with bone buttons and trimmed with machine stitching. Eminently practical and good style are these gowns, excepting that the skirts are still absurdly long and touch at the sides and in front. However, there are rumors, apparently well founded, that by next summer the useful gowns will have short skirts. In the meantime the women are doing more toward cleaning the streets than the Street Cleaning Department.

Many gowns are made up in the double-faced cloths, without lining. These will be put away when the weather turns cold enough for fur coats, but will reappear in the spring, so that for women who have money enough and lots of time to bestow on their cloths it is by no means a bad plan to have one of these commonsense frocks turned out.

Skirt and Coat Costume.

Apparently women have found that they cannot get along without at least one skirt and coat costume, and when It is possible they have two or three. and with them they wear waists of different materials, although of the same coloring perhaps. 'A fad is to have a waist made of miroir or tan velvet the shade of the gown, absolutely plain and worn with a lace tie. This is abuncomfortable things in the world to wear under a cloth coat, and, as the coat sleeves must be small, if the coat is to look well, it makes a woman's prin feel as though all circulation had stopped. The coat and skirt gown to be worn in the morning should be plain; the skirt can be trimmed with folds of cloth or stitched bands, but it should be all in one color. The coat should be plain, without any revers excepting those of the cloth. With such a gown as this good furs show to advantage, but, of course, the whole costume must be well made. For the benefit of women who cannot afford to employ tailors it may be stated that it is possible in these days to have a cloth suit made by a seamstress.

The great difficulty of cloths is in the sponging and pressing, but this can be done before the cloth is sent home from the shop, and when the time comes for the seams to be pressed there are plenty of small tailor establishments where such work can be

Elaborate and Expensive.

The handsomer and more elaborate cloth gowns for afternoon are becoming more and more elaborate and expensive every day, for the work on them is of the fluest kind. The cut work and the different forms of applique are seen on every smart gown. until it is wonderful how much variety there can be obtained. No poor work is possible on these light cloths, and the lining that shows where the cloth is cut away must also be of expensive quality. The advantage of this style of trimming is that the flat effect that is so fashionable can best be carried out by it. A light gray gown will have a panel at the side of the skirt, or the front beradth lined with a much lighter gray or white than the front of the waist, which will be absolutely tight fitting, and covered with the cut work, leaving only a shaped yoke of the same color as the lining. Or there will be a band of the cut work half way up the skirt and extending completely around it, and the same design will be repeated around the waist covering the upper part of the sleeve. Still another plan is to have designs of cut work at the bottom of each breadth on the front of the waist and on the sleeves. This, however, is more on the applique order of embroidery.

Applique Designs,

The applique designs are shown in great variety on the evening gowns which are made of lace or velvet. One particularly attractive evening gown that has the upper part of the skirt and the lower part of the waist made of turquoise blue velvet is covered with large figures of pale yellow velvet outlined with gold thread, and these figures are put on in the shape of leaves. On this came gown is a deep flounce of lace and on the lace are also designs of the velvet leaves. A white lace gown of a beautiful quality of lace has white velvet leaves sewed over it, and the:e leaves are embroidered and outlined with seed pearls. It is needless to say | show a fair knowledge of that interthat this style of trimming is exceed- esting science.

One of the smartest of cloth reception gowns that has been turned out this winter is of a black smartest of cloth reception gowns that The Pox Contained a Colored Boy Who have a scant attached flounce. On this flounce are stars of black moire silk of different sizes that are outlined with jet beids and that have an embroidery of jet beads on them. #### Pretty Fastenings,

The fashion still continues on having the waist fastened a little to one side. This is more becoming to most figures than when the waist is fastened directly in front and is particularly pretty in the silk walsts. A good example of this is the waist made with a small round yoke. The fronts of the waist are cut in curves around the yoke and then one side fastens over on to the other, the buttons beginning at a long journey. They rode all night the left shoulder and going across diagonally to the waist line. This is finally they arrived in a dense wood, good in a black tucked taffeta waist or where they were joined by several in a light blue mirror velvet. Buttons, by the way, play a most important part in trimmings this year. They were used first on the fur coats and were brought out in many good patterns, the cut steel and the rhinestones being especially good, but now sometimes most of them would be for use on the dress waists there are a away for weeks at a time. On their great many that look like real jewels, so cleverly do they imitate the stone. And there are also pretty ones in gold, silver, steel and jet. All do not button into regular buttonhole, but more often are fastened with a small hoop, but they add much to the trimming. They are sometimes used on skirts, three large ones on either side of the front breadth of good workmanship. They are used again on the jackets and often some costume of cloth, velvet or satin. wounds.

Two days later, not finding the consignee, the agent opened the box, but instead of a dog he found in it a diminutive colared boy between sixteen and seventeen years old.

The story he told was almost beyond belief, although there is some correboration. When four or five years old, he said, he was stolen from home by two men named John Long and William McCowan. He does not remember his parents' names or where they lived at the time of his abduction. He was placed on a horse in front of one of the men and taken on and for several days afterwards, until

Elephant Tending Babies.

Weakness appeals powerfully to the riendly protection of the strong, and even among brutes-at least, the nobler kinds—the appeal is not often in vain. In the curious relations between monster and midget we not unfrequently see the fable of the lion and the mouse repeated without words. There is nothing by any means uncommon or incredible in the stories which have been reported about the children of a mahout being cared for by the mahout's elephant,

The children thus brought up in the companionship of an elephant become familiar with him, and take all kinds of liberties with him, which the elephant seems to endure on the principle that it does not hurt him, while it amuses the child. You see a little naked black child, about two feet high, standing on the elephant's bare back, and taking il down to the water to bathe, shouting all the time in the most unbecoming terms of native abusive language.

On arriving at the water the elephant, ostensibly in obedience to the child's command, lies down and enjoys himself, just leaving a part of his body, like a small island, above water, on which the small child stands and yells, and yells all the more if he has several companions of his own age, also in charge of their elephants, all wallowing in the water around him. The Delegation States That a Better Route for the Road Than That Which Has Been Announced Would be by Way of Easton and Marshall-

A committee of members of the Dalton board of trade came to Massillon this afternoon for the purpose of ascertaining the general feeling of citizens of this place regarding the propose  $\epsilon$  . Mas sillon, Doylestown and Birberton electric line, and to create, if possible, a sentiment favorable to the extension of the line to Daiton. Incidentally they sought information concerning the company represent d by Messrs. Townsena and Garver. The committee was composed of Dr. F. F. H. Pope, L. B. Snod grass, J. E Goudy, William Licke. Harvey Santmyer, John Chafia, ex Mayor C. J. Harrold, S. B 3. artin and M. F. McDowell, all business men of Dalton.

Messrs. Garver and Townsend, it seems, announced that they would in clude Dalton in the route for their line on condition that citizens of that place subscribe for $50,000 worth of stock to the company. Before entering into such an agreement, the citizens naturally de sire a clear understarding of just wh t they are doing. The consensus of opinion in Dalton is that the route suggested by Messrs, Townsend and Garver is not the best. From Doylestown, they think, the road should be constructed to Easton, thence to Marshallville, thence to Burton City, Dalton, East Greenville. West Brookfield and Massillon. This route, it is stated, is but a half mile longer than that of Fulton. Lawrence, Greenville and Brookfield, and its towns he but three miles apart. In addition, by adopting the Easton route, instead of running parallel with the various railways of this vicini ty, nearly all of them would be crossed at different points. The C, L & W would be met at Easton, the C., A & C as Marshallville, the W & L E., and P F W. & C., at Burton City and the W. & L. E. at Dalton. The committee stated that their village also has a proposition from a company interes ed in running a line from Wadsworth in their direction The first place the committee called was at the office of THE INDEPENDENT where a half hour was spent in discussion of the situation. At 3 o'cleck they met with Mayor Wise and other city officials. A conference with members of the board of trade was also held.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they fil-

It is impossible to exaggerate the 1m portance of the result of General Buller's expected attack upon the Boers and it is evident that his success and the relief of Ladysmith would decide the issue of the South African war, although the fighting might continue for months thereafter. A second failure would entail exertions on the part of the British government compared to which even the present display of energy would be small.

At the close of the first year of the existence of the McClymonds public li brary the city is to be more than re-congratulated. Since the day of the opening, formulated plans relating to its management have been carried on features and privileges of the institution to which they have unrestricted access. Briefly, the strongest points of the Massillon library are, first, free access to the book stacks; second, a card catalogue constantly improving in completeness which enables readers to lay hand at once on anything relating to any subject, and thirdly, and more important than all, assistance by a staff of librarians, the members of which are always ready to comply with any request that the limits of the library enable them to fultill.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

The board of trustees of the McCly monds Public Library Association takes pleasure in transmitting through its president, this, their second annual report on the condition and operation of the 'ibrary for the year 1899. Possibly no better exposition of the work of the knowledge and actual experience, stand library in this community can be found librarian's annual report made to your trustees.

We are informed that during the year just passed the library has been open to the public 305 days, and the circulation has been 43,230 volumes, a daily average of 141 and a monthly average of 3,602. The largest daily circulation was on Saturday, April 8th, when 313 volumes were given out, the smallest, 51, Thursday, December 14th A tabulation of the circulation by classes discloses the fact that of the reading done away from the library, three-fourths of it has been fiction, including under this head juvenile stories. In considering this result, however, it is perhaps well to re member that modern fiction has come to cover the entire ground of human life and thought, so that those devoted to the first there was little hope for his rethe novel if they read with attention, must learn of facts and meet problems that are discussed more solidly in books of art, science, history, philosophy and sociology.

It is hoped and expected that in our library the privilege that has been granted for the coming year, of two books on may enable us to report a decided in crease in solid reading. While our statistics do not indicate there can be no doubt that this department is one of the most important in the library, and efforts will be continually made to render it of greater service to the literary clubs and students. Two years ago Mr. Friedman married Mrs. Sophia Paul, who survives him.

When the accident which cost Mr. Friedman his life occurred, he was on his way to Canton to pay his taxes. He had ridden nearly to Reedurban with a friend. Here he left the carriage, intending to take the next Canton-bound car. It being rather cold, he walked about to keep warm. His back was toward the car when it arrived. The noise bewildered him, and instead of getting to a safe point and signaling, he stepped so close to the track as to be struck by the time while in the hospital, and from

Aggregate of Fire Sufferers' Estimates.

MOST PROPERTY INSURED.

The Fire is Supposed to Have Originated in the Cellar of the Jones Place, But Nothing is Known Concerning the Manner in Which it Started.

The fire chief's recommendations to the council for better protection and the alarm for the $12,000 blaze at the intersection of Main and Muskingum streets were rung in together at 8:45 o'clock Monday evening. The chief's prayers and the alarms have been equally numerous in the past year, but the responses to the latter have been far more prompt than those to the former. All of the disastrous conflagrations of 1899 took place at about the same time of the month as the Monday night fire.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. Men in the saloon of David Jones, at 27 West Main street, were the first to notice in, and they sent in an alarm from box No. 33, near the old Clay street engine house. They were sitting in a room in the rear of the saloon when they saw smoke issuing through the seams of the floor. At that time it seemed that the fire was confined to a small space in the cellar, under a narrow passageway between the Jones building and that of John Sheehan, on the west. All the structures here are of frame, and in a moment half the block seemed ablaze. Hose Company No.1 had several steams of water playing on the fire in shortorder and meanwhile the second alarm was turned in. When all hose companies arrived, water was thrown from every practicable American war as a relic, arrived in the point, and the spreading of the flames to some of the surrounding buildings was prevented. The new frame Winold block, east of the Jones place, was on fire at one time. Smoke and water did damage to the contents of both stories. The building and saloon of Peter Wilhelm, west of the Sheehan property, were much damaged.

Fearing that the fire might get beyond the control of the firemen, a request was sent to the Canton department to come immediately. The latter sent back word that they were having troubles of their own, and might themselves need assistance before morning.

Mrs. Louise Winold, whose apartments are above the grocery of Warth & Lux, is suffering greatly from the shock Since her narrow escape of a few months ago, when her residence caught fire in some inexplicable manner, she has been extremely nervous. Mrs. Winold was half suffocated when rescued by her son, Albert Winold, Monday evening The smoke had poured into her room in great volume, and she was too bewildered to ras with her in her anartments.

tors Decline Favors.

A few Ohio legislators, among them some of the Stark county members, have returned passes issued by railway companies. The Hon. Clark W. Metzger, of this city, was the first to do so. He told the Pennsylvania Company that he had never done anything to merit such kindness from it, and, as the state allowed traveling expenses, he preferred to pay his own fare. Those who have sent back their passes say that if they had accepted them they would have felt that the railway people expected something in return, and they did not wish to be placed in that position.

How I Popped the Question

The first time I proposed since I was of an age to know my own mind was some ten years ago. I had spent a holiday at Scarborough, and in that most delightful of seaside re-orts there was sojourning a family whom I will call Jenkins. Their real name was far more aristocratic, but I have no desire to repay insult and inpury by giving their real designation.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins were very pleasint people. They had a most charming daughter, a little too fond of practical joking I thought, but charming nevertheless

The thorn in my side in that case was a cousin who lived with them; he was an orphan, and came from somewhere in the West Indies.

I suppose it is because I am rather short, wear spectacles, and am very nervous, that he thought I would be a fit subject for practical jokes. I am fairly good-natured and prefended not to mind it, especially as I was very much smitten with his fair cousin.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins were much older than any of us, and regarded us conversation he said:

Christ is more truly as children together, but though their daughter was eighteen, they seemed to consider her a child, and I don't suppose the thought of matrimony, in regard to her, had ever entered their

One day this objectionable cousin and I went for a bathe together and while we were making our way to the shore he remarked:

shall herr the wedding-bells shortly?" "I don't understand you," I said, whereit he gave me a dig in the ribs, as one who should say, "You ely dog!" "Upon my honor, I really don't know what you mean," I retorted, rather nettled.

"Well." he replied, "you are about the only person in Scarboraugh who me there is nothing between Mabel and | would get $1,000 a year.

How I did it I don't know, but I rose from my seat, got down on my knees in some way or other, and seized her hand. She was just about to rise, when the folding doors between the two drawing-rooms oponed and disclosed not only the objectionable cousin but Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins.

The cousin was apparently splitting ble sides with laughter, while Mr. Jen. Transcript.

Pollmation of the Pear.

The Department at Washington has issued a pamphlet of nearly 200 pages. on the influences and changes wrought in the flowers and fruit of the petr, and more particularly in the Bartlett, by dusting them with pollen from other varieties, such as Anjou, Augonleine, Winter Nells and Clap. These changes are occasionally considerable. but some credit must be ascribed to season, and to skill in pruning and culture. The influence of the stock Sterling. is sometimes important. The subject is interesting, and changes may be obtained by future experimenters; but it must be remembered that results are only the changes of varieties, and that none of them are specific; one variety does not hop across the line through this agency.

Alsike Clover.

For those who wish to keep land in clover only a single year the alsike variety is probably the best! It bears its seed in the first crop of the second Cleveland at Massillon, northbound, 6:40 a. year's growth. When that is cut the Bidge-port to Wheelby. It does not have long consult tap roots reaching into the subsoil as red clover does; but instead a network of roots that run through the sell nearer the surface. It is probably the greater amount of warmth that alsike clover roots get early in the that of red clover. When the soil warms deeper later in the season the red clover hay becomes more nutritious.

Value of Manure.

Farmers cannot make valuable manare out of substances that are of inferior quality as food for stock. The value of manure depends entirely upon the substances from which it is derived, and the bulk signifies nothing. One ten of manure from animals that are fed on bran, middlings and cottonseed will contain many times as much plant food as will manure that may be made from straw or less nutritious articles. The differences in values cannot really be estimated, as the feeding substances all vary in qualily.

Artesian Wells

Artesian wells are causing great changes in the agricultural prospects of Queensland, Australia and New South Wales. Large tracts which have hitherto been liable to occasional disastrous droughts have become valuable for pastoral and agricultural purposes since the hidden reservoirs have been tapped by ariesian wells. A single investment company has expended about $150,000 in this way and obtained over 8,000,000 gallons of water per day. So abundant is supply that 30,000,000 gallons dails are allowed to run to waste.

WAR MARKSMANSHIP.

IMPOSSIBLE FEATS CREDITED TO BOER SHARPSHOOTERS.

The Difficulty of Hitting a Man at 1,000 Yards, or Less.-The Difference Between Target Practice and Actual War is Very

"Do you shoot a rifle? Do you know what the limitations of that weapon are? Do you know that the marksmanship with which the average Boer is accredited is well-nigh as impossible as Baron Munchausen's boasted performance of shooting forty-'leven ducks at a single shot with a pearl, and so gauging his charge of powder that the pearl lodged in the heart of the last duck in the line? Do you know that the American people are reading a lot of tommy rot?"

This volley of questions came from a man who has had experience with firearms and has given more than casual attention to the matter of marks-

He was vexed because an acquaintance had called his attention to published statements that would lead one to believe that it was an easy trick for a Boer farmer to stand on his back perch, and with his trusty rifle shoot an antelope—or, if need be, a man— 709 or 1,000 yards distant.

"Do you know that shooting at a man 1,000 yards away any marksman has about as much chance to hit him as you have to find a needle that has been thrown into a load of hay? If you don't know these things go and get some information. Go to A. P. Ingails at 108 North Fourth street and get him to teach you the a b c of marksmanship. He has made a lifelong study of rifle shooting. He was born and bred to it, and for years he was one of the best riflemen in the West. He can explain how and why no man can shoot as these Afrikanders are said to shoot."

The other man sought out Mr. Ingalls and gathered a store of information about rifle shooting that is of interest in these times of war.

The mentor is an elderly man, with a red-brown beard streaked with gray, deep-set, keen eyes, and a gift of incisive, homely speech.

'Can in expert rideman hit an object the size of a man 1,000 yards away? asked the visitor.

"Of course he can," was the reply. "You stand for a target 1,000 yards from me and I will kill you nine times out of ten. Any rifleman can do that."

That seemed to settle the matter, and the visitor was sorry he had listened to the man who had sent him to Mr. Ingalls, but he plucked up heart and asked if the feut could be performed under all conditions.

"Certainly not," said—the veteran. "It practically can't be done unless the marksman knows the exact distance of his target and precisely what his gun will do and has taken the proper care to load his shells, and his sights are adjusted to the wind."

"Do you believe these storics about the Boers' ability to pick off men or artelope at from 750 to 1,000 yards?" "No, and no one else does who knows anything apout shooting. . It would take a ton of lead fired out of a rifle to kill a man 1,000 yards distant under conditions that prevail in

"There are three great difficulties to be surmounted: The first is estimating the distance; the second is guaging the wind; the third is the absolute inability of any man to hold a gun perfectly steady without a rest-I might almost say with a rest. I have known one man who could judge distance accurately, but he was a freak, such as these men who can carry columns and columns of figu.es in their heads. He could glance at an object, say 200 yards away, and tell you the distance, and he wouldn't miss it two yards. I saw him kill a deer 400 yards away once. That is the longest successful shot I ever knew to be made at a live target except when the distance was known to a certainty. If it had been any one but the man who did it I would say it was just a happen-that he couldn't do it again-but I knew his wonderful gift for estimating distances accurately. I have heard a good many men claim to have killed deer 500 or 600 yards distant. I always think 200 yards would be a closer estimate. And when I have had the opportunity and have taken the trouble to measure the distance I have found I was right. I once killed a crow with a rifle 249 yards away. That sounds like a bigger lie than all the others, but it is the truth.

"It was when I was a boy in Maine. My father had a target 500 yards from our back fence. There was a dead calf | happened. exactly half way between the fence and the target. It had been put there as a bait for a fox. There had been a snow and the crows had dug down to the carcass and one was standing The sentinel's black feathers made a Will you make the selection?" perfect mark against the snow background, although he didn't look bigger than a nailhead in yonder wall. I knew the distance, and I knew what If I say Tacoma, the people in Scattle, notch to put the sights of the gun. a larger municipatity, will be sore. There was no wind stirring. I rested and Mr. Crow fell over dead. Now that was just a happen shot. I aimed to make it all right, but I might not do appreciate the compliment. Then, too, it again in a thousand times.

"Now for the wind: In a 1,000-yard | can find any fault. Call the new equisrange a wind blowing three miles an hour will deflect a bullet about fifteen feet. That has to be allowed for, and as the wind's force is rarely the same that is how the famous warship came over the entire range it is practically to be named." impossible to gauge it accurately for a chance range. "As to the inability of a man to hold a gun perfectly steady, anybody knows that is true. But there are marksmen who can drive tacks with a rule or cut a string with a bullet. That is true, but not at long range. Let me illushowever, that steel expands with heat, You may even remember the figures as to the expansion and contraction of big bridges according as the weather that for every grain of powder burned in a gun there is a corresponding expansion of the metal burrel. I also know that if this expansion is not equable the gun will not shoot true. The expansion cannot be absolutely the same at every point of an octagonshaped barrel because some parts are thicker than others, whereas a round barrel is the same thickness all around, and expands at one point as much as it does at another. This may sound chimerical to you, but did you ever see a piece of modern artillery with any but a cylindrical barrel? They are made that way in order to secure equality of expansion.

'Another thing that target-shooters do who make scores worth noting is to load their own shells. I never saw a man make a decent score with factory ammunition, and, of course, that is what soldiers in the field use. We weigh our powder as carefully us though it were gold dust, and if there is a grain too much or a grain too little we reduce or add to the charge exactly that grain. "Lam not saying that a men can't hit a target without all this care. I have seen harum-scarum fellows plunk the bull s-eye with a factory cartridge, But they can't shoot steadily, and when the scores are made up they are not in it. They may have bull's eyes, but others of their shots will have gone wide of the target. A very small thing will start a bullet on the wrong course. That is one reason why target shooters don't use magazine guns. The bulmore worn on one side than on the other. Of course, that is fatal in longdistance shooting, although it might hundred yards.

"But the great difficulty about sharpshooters picking men off at long range, is that they can't know how far they are shooting, and they can't hold the gun on the target. To be sure, they can get the range of a position with a range finder, and then rain bullets on develop into disease. it, and, where so many bullets are falling, some are bound to find their billets, but that isn't marksmanshipthat is merely shelling a position. A bullet from a modern rifle will kill more than a mile away, and theoretically they are sighted for tremendous distances, but the trouble is that noat such extremely long ranges."

"Sharpshooters, of course, have peep sights to concentrate their vision, but any hunter will tell you that a peop sight isn't of much service when the object to be sighted is not clearly defined against the background.

"If I were to see a Filipino 1,000 yards away, I'd take a crack at him for luck." concluded Mr. Ingalls, "but, unless I knew the exact distance and the force of the wind, and had a perfect rest, I would only get him by chance."

Mr. Ingalls was reared in Maine, and lived on the plains of Southern Kansas from 1870 until 1890. He has killed his share of huffalo and other big came, and talks understandingly on all matters pertaining to firearms and their uses .- St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

CO-OPERATIVE CREAMERY

A Few Lines Along Which it is Possible

There are a few lines along which it is possible and profitable for farmers to co-operate. One of these is butter making. The establishment of cooperative spirit, and placed in the conditions justify, has been recommended frequently in the columns of this paper. They are successful enterprises when located in the midst of sufficiently large cow population owned by dairymen with the true cooperatiove spirit, and placed in the The average man devotes himself to hands of good business managers.

In an address on dairying, before the Ohio Agricultural Convention,

'And what of the butter business? I believe it is a better business (than the choese business); far better if we can have really co-onerative creameries with good centirifugal separators and the sharing of profits (or even the purchase of milk) on the strict basis o the Babcock test of butter fats... 1 lately visited a creamery at Centreville, Indiana, owned by stockholders, who are chiefly patrons of the cream-It is run on the profit-sharing co-operative plan. The butter tests of different dairies in December run all the way from 24 to 5 per cent, of butter fat by the Babcock test. This shows the outrageous injustice and demoral zing effect of buying milk by the hundred weight, not tested. The churn test of salted butter sold averaged over 5 per cent. Thus the churic test runs from 12 to 20 per cent, above the Babcock, because the Babcock gives pure butter fats, and the churn test gives actual salted butter, including water, salt and any other possible solids in the finished product. This is a wide margin, and in this creamery the patrons share the benefit of it. In many creameries the margin is kept very shady; the buying is by the Babcock est, the selling by the churn test, and the margin goes to the creamery owners, stockholders and officers, and not to the patrons. Wherever a creamery can be run like this, it seems to me the ideal plan. This particular one was built by a Chicago firm at a round price, but even this watered or loaded stock paid 7 per cent, dividend last year, and paid the patrons as last year, and paid the patrons as stated. It has run nearly three years. The trouble in many places in the greamery work is of several sortstoo costly a plant, too many salaried men, univise location, and insufficient milk supply, perty quarrels and lack of confidence among stockholders and

Though its offensive features are sometimes almost unbearable. few people are aware of the danger of which Catarch is the forerunner. Catarrh invariably leads to Consumption. Growing worse and worse each winter, those who rely upon the usual treatment of sprays, washes and inhaling mixtures find that it is impossible to check the disease with these local applications which only reach the surface.
